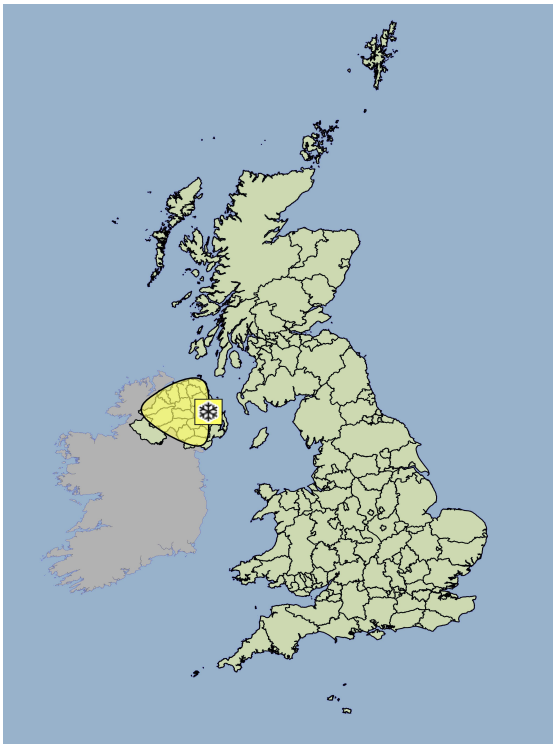
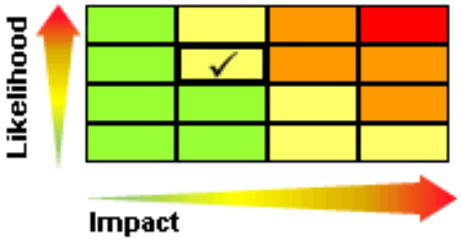
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An organised area of showers will affect Northern Ireland at first this afternoon, with a mix of rain, sleet and snow. The snow may fall to low levels at first, but accumulations on roads should be mostly above 300 metres.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow

Valid from 12:15 on Thu, 13th Feb 2014 until 18:00 on Thu, 13th Feb 2014

An area of rain and sleet with hill snow will move eastwards across Northern Ireland this afternoon. Some snow is possible at low levels initially but most settling snow is likely above 300 metres, where 2-5 cm is possible in places.

The public should be aware of the risk of localised disruption to travel on the higher level routes in Northern Ireland.
